Dear FCC:

I'm a user of sirius, stockholder and consumer. I endorse and approve this merger for many reasons. I love the new pricing plan that Sirius/XM has presented and will give me better rates and better stations based on the package I want. This is discretionary optional money I spend from my pocket and at any time, if I feel monopolized, I can cancel. Second, I NEVER listen to free radio, 45 minutes of commercials and 15 minutes of songs is not my gig. I play my ipod or CD's if I am not listening to Sirius. Please disregard the NAB as being jealous and too concerned about money and not consumers. If you don't approve this merger, I would have stern words to NAB about making sure they are making their customers happy playing good music without alot of commericals.

I am in favor of the merger because it would give me as a customer of Sirius more to choose from if I choose to. I like the options that the merger will bring, whether I want to listen to certain channels and if I don't want to listen to some channels. I don't listen to regular radio anymore because of the numerous commercials and the talk of the radio personalities, they are frankly boring, but with Sirius, I can listen to music all day and enjoy my drive. Please approve this merger it will be beneficial to all given the choice that we will be given.

Dear FCC:

Dear Sir or Madam:

Frankly, this merger will only help the customer. I buy american cars like GM and so my only choice is XM if I don't want extra wires and receivers in my car. the merger would allow the customer to choose what was best for them, not what had been pre negotiated between the car manufacturers and the 2 sat providers. The merger would allow me to control what I want to listen to not be at the mercy of one company. In addition, this is a purely optional service, if the merged company priced its service to high, I would not, and I'm sure most Americans wouldn't pay for it. This would likely indicate to Sirius-XM that the prices needed to come down.

Sincerely,

Sarah Todd

Dear FCC:

Dear Concerned Parties-

Please cast my vote in favor of the Sirius-XM satellite radio merger! I want to be able to hear the NFL/NBA/NHL/MLB all on one radio...plus, I like a lot of the other programming the "other" sat-rad provider offers, yet I don't wish to subscribet to two services!

I also very much like the a la carte pricing plan, especially the $6.99-for-50 channels offer; My wife only likes to hear some 3-channels....in our vehicle, so I would like to subscribe to this offering, instead of the full-$12.99 plan!

Finally, I think more Americans will be able to afford sat-rad if the merger goes through....b/c the cheaper price offering is something "every-one can afford"....not just a few tech-oriented, or new-car-buying folks!

Please allow this merger...and cast my vote in the "affirmative" for the merger!

What is the hold up? Monopoly?? Please, there is a choice not to pay or get free radio. Cable companies have the monopoly and there is the same choice. Free TV only if you can have an antenna or Dish antenna which most can not. But cable continues to be allowed to have the monopoly until FIOS gets installed. Let the market decide. There is no downside to this for the consumer. I have a Sirius radio in my car and XM on my motorcycle. When the merger is complete, I will be able to have my choice of what to listen to at a fraction of what I am paying for now. Communications companies can battle for my dollar through the same phone line, cable depends on where you live. Let them merge because what happens when XM goes out of business?? It would be like having only one gas company or one grocery store. I know they are saying that they will do this or that so the merger will be allowed but two or three years from now they can raise prices and we will not be able to change providers. It is not likely that someone new will enter the business because of the cost of doing so. I think that recently dish and direct tv attempted to merge and couldn't. There is more competition in tv because of cable. You can't really count over the air radio because it really is not the same. I would appreciate a reply. Thanks

Plus when does the fcc allow monopolies. Is this not the reason At&t was broken up in the 80's. FCC Chairman Kevin J. Martin

Dear FCC Chairman Martin,

As a singer/actress in the Seattle area, I am writing to express my grave concern about the potential negative impact that the introduction of new wireless devices in radio frequencies currently used for wireless microphone and related audio equipment will have on our communities, performers, and audiences.

Professional wireless sound equipment is used to provide high-quality audio to performing arts audiences, and to record and present these artistic performances to people all over the world through broadcast on television, cable, satellite or over the Internet. Wireless microphones and related wireless audio equipment are used extensively and play a critical role in the production of various performing arts performances. Such productions and their recordings provide an infinite opportunity to expand the audience and availability of these performances to individuals who are unable to attend live performances.

In addition, wireless microphones and equipment is utilized to facilitate communication between backstage staff members and performers. Directors, managers, crew members and many others rely upon such equipment to communicate performance and lighting cues, staging movement and other vital directions. Wireless microphones are also utilized in conjunction with infra-red technology to provide listening systems for hearing impaired performing arts patrons. Without these microphones, the infra-red system would pick up music only, not dialogue or lyrics.

There is no practical or feasible alternative to the current wireless audio systems used by performing arts companies. It would be virtually impossible to migrate to a wired audio system if wireless audio equipment begins to suffer from severe interference with the introduction of new unlicensed devices. The use of wired audio equipment would not only be impractical, but would create an unsafe and dangerous work area for performers and staff. Wireless microphones and audio equipment provide the freedom to move safely and quickly backstage while providing high-quality and reliable audio transmissions.

The FCC should not authorize personal/portable devices at this time, should identify "clean" spectrum free of potential interference and it should carefully conduct testing to verify that new devices will not harm the wireless microphone and audio equipment that is essential to bringing the performing arts to millions.

Thank you for your attention to this important matter. I look forward to your support.

Sincerely,
Jennifer Greene

Dear Kevin J. Martin,

As an avid and passionate Internet "surfer," I ask that you do everything you can to foster healthy, price-cutting competition in the high-speed Internet market. While the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) prepares to auction off the prized 700-megahertz band of wireless broadband spectrum, I urge you to reserve at least half of this spectrum for unbridled wholesale competition. The fear is that the FCC will simply allow AT&T, Comcast, and Verizon to dominate the spectrum and bump off any competition. Such bullying behavior has allowed big cable and phone companies to control about 96 percent of the high-speed market. As a result, these companies have bypassed tens of millions of customers who weren't deemed lucrative enough, or they have been allowed by sparse competition to charge exorbitant rates. The result is that more than half of adult Americans don't subscribe to broadband Internet, which is largely too expensive or inaccessible. Please take advantage of this great opportunity and protect our precious public airwaves from the cable and phone giants' competition-killing stranglehold on broadband Internet. Just as importantly, I ask that you hold any broadband service operators in the 700 MHz band to strict "net neutrality" standards, and mandate that they allow consumers to use any equipment, content, application or service without interference in the spirit of the FCC's 1968 "Carterfone" decision.

There are many companies out there that are closer to being monopolies such as Time Warner, Clear Channel, etc. Rupert Murdoch is buying up everything in the news world but you don't care about that. Just his merger. XM/Sirius is a great new technology that puts pressure on regular radio to have a better product. It competes with every known form of music, radio, etc. It is a service that you don't have to have either. Commissioner Adelstein:

I am writing this letter after watching the debate over the XM /Sirius Merger. With all the items listed in the press, it is clear to me the FCC is continuing down a path that makes no sense in todays world. Instead of worrying about a monopoly, the FCC needs to start realizing that delivery methods are no longer determining factors for monopolies. Whether a service is delivered via cable, phone/dsl, air or satellite is no longer relevant.

The public has a choice to purchase satellite radio, whether it be from one provider or two. It does not hold a monopoly on music, news or any other material being transmitted.

Based on this, I recommend you stop wasting my tax money and approve the merger. If the combined organization charges too much, the consumer will be the decision maker on whether or not they want this product.

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am inquiring about the announcement of a merger between XM Satellite Radio and Sirius Satellite Radio. I am currently a subscriber to one of these services and I have read the press release on the XM website. In reading this, I have become concerned the ratification of a merger between the two companies will not be in the best interest of the consumer, as they are two competing platforms and a merge will eliminate competition, reduce services, and reduce value for the consumer.

There has been a pro-merger argument that the satellite medium is in fact competing against the so-called "terrestrial" radio medium, but this is not the case, as this medium is a free service, and encompasses news, public, and emergency broadcasting, as well as free entertainment. Satellite radio is a premium service that in reality augments the free radio medium by delivering an array of services that differs from what free radio currently offers.

I hope to urge a complete and thorough review of this planned merger, as it will most certainly create a monopolistic atmosphere and reduce competition and choices for the consumer.

Sincerely,

My family and I urge the Federal Communication Commission to reject the merger between XM Satellite Radio and Sirius Satellite Radio unless decency restrictions are applied to the merged satellite company.

The FCC does not require Satellite radio to comply with the decency restrictions that are enforced on terrestrial radio. Approving one satellite radio company with no decency restrictions will cause greater competition disparities between a satellite radio monopoly and terrestrial radio stations.

The FCC should apply indecency restrictions to satellite radio as part of the merger terms between XM and Sirius if the application is to be approved. Otherwise, we urge you to reject the merger because it will create competitive disparities that are unfair to terrestrial radio.
